

Preparation of at least one organic compound by heterogeneously catalyzed partial gas-phase oxidation

Abstract

5

Organic compounds are prepared by heterogeneously catalyzed partial gas-phase oxidation of precursor compounds by a process in which a portion of the reaction gas starting mixture is brought from a low initial pressure to a higher final pressure by means of a radial compressor.